

PROTECT YOU & YOUR LOVED ONES

Travel Medicine & Vaccines

Travel medical consultation to protect against travel-related illnesses and diseases.

Do I need a travel clinic?

International travel may pose unforeseen health risks. Travel clinics provide essential, destination-specific health advice, including medications and vaccinations that are recommended or required, and the resources to prevent illnesses while you and your loved ones are abroad.

Rockdoc's Health Care Professionals have specific certifications and training in travel medicine. They are up-to-date on outbreaks worldwide, regional guidelines, and recommended medications and vaccinations tailored to your specific travel plans and medical history. As such, most family doctors do not provide this highly specialized service.

Are travel clinics covered by the public health system?

Travel medicine (i.e., consultations, medications, and vaccinations) is not covered by public health. However, extended health benefits and insurance providers will cover all or part of the medications and vaccinations.

Before your trip, speak with a travel medicine expert for personalized health recommendations and pre-travel immunizations. Click here to learn more.
